TINA's URN

I have a serious fear of heights, but my fear is totally irrational (I know...most phobias are irrational). Flying in an airplane or helicopter?

No problem. I've even loved piloting a small plane and flying in a Black Hawk helicopter with the doors open. Roller Coasters? I love them too. Well, except the ones where my feet hang. Ladders? I can't get past the 2nd step without my knees going to jello. I've never been able to climb into my attic. Observation decks? You'll find me hugging the wall by the elevator.

Years ago, I tried to go on a tethered balloon ride, but the thought of it turned my stomach. So, imagine my surprise, when I was invited to fly in Gary Odom's Master Blaster hot air balloon and I stepped into the basket without a moment's hesitation. Being in a hot air balloon is one of the most peaceful rides I've ever been on. I hardly noticed as we gently lifted off the ground at LSU and peacefully floated over the treetops along Youree Drive. I can't say I was totally at ease, but Gary chatted with me the entire time to settle any nervousness that was lingering. I thoroughly enjoyed the ride!! I was even able to lean over the basket and wave to children watching us from below. The landing was pretty incredible as Gary slowly lowered the balloon, between trees and telephone wires, into a small clearing where his crew, who had been following us in their truck, grabbed some ropes and pulled us down.

Then I was introduced to a fascinating, and memorable tradition - The "First Flight Ceremony". I was asked to kneel while Gary retold the story of the Champagne tradition. If you go way back to ballooning's origins, pilots presented the landowners, on whose property they made their landing, with a bottle of champagne. He then read the Balloonists's Prayer. With the final sentence, he poured sparkling cider on my head. I wasn't expecting it, but we all laughed, then went to breakfast. Make sure you turn to page 15 to read the prayer and more about Gary and his journey to ballooning.

As always this issue is jammed with informative and fun articles. You will especially want to check out page 8 for some great tips for staying healthy and living longer and page 26 for finding affordable home internet services from our newest columnist, The Savvy Senior, Jim Miller. And you don't want to miss our Easter egg hunt. For details, see page 18.

On a final note, my husband Gary and I are often thanked for bringing so much vital information to the area's senior community. Please know that, neither this magazine nor the radio show, would be possible without the financial support of our advertisers. Please join us in thanking them for their commitment to serving YOU!!

Until next month, take some time to enjoy this glorious Spring. We pray you have a blessed Easter or Passover!!

Alcohol's Effect Can Be More Damaging to Women

Women simply don't metabolize alcohol in the same way as men. Several research studies have shown that some women who drink heavily can do as much damage to their bodies in 4 to 5 years as a man who has been drinking for 20 to 25 years.

Remember:

- A standard drink is 5 ounces of wine, 12 ounces of beer or 1½ ounces of liquor.
- A regular bottle of wine contains 5 standard drinks.
- For women, no more than 7 standard drinks a week are recommended.
- Risky drinking is considered to be 4 standard drinks in any one day or drinking episode.
- It takes about an hour per drink for the liver to metabolize alcohol.

Early Birds May Make Healthier Food Choices Than Night Owls

Benjamin Franklin extolled the virtues of early risers saying, "early to bed, early to rise, makes a man healthy, wealthy and wise" – and a new study by the National Institute for Health and Welfare at the Department of Public Health Solutions in Helsinki, Finland and published in Obesity, adds scientific data to the claim that morning people may in fact be healthier. By comparing "morning type" people with "evening type" people, researchers found that morning people ate more balanced foods overall and ate earlier in the day. This study shows that evening type people have less favorable eating habits, which may put them at a higher risk for obesity, diabetes and heart disease.

Rapid Blood Pressure Drops Linked to Dementia

Middle-aged people who experience temporary blood pressure drops that often cause dizziness upon standing up may be at an increased risk of developing cognitive decline and dementia 20 years later, new Johns Hopkins Bloomberg School of Public Health research suggests. The findings suggest that these temporary episodes – known as orthostatic hypotension – may cause lasting damage, possibly because they reduce needed blood flow to the brain. Previous research has suggested a connection between orthostatic hypotension and cognitive decline in older people, but this appears to be the first to look at long-term associations. These participants, who were on average 54 years old upon enrolling in the study, continued to be followed over the next 20 or more years. People with orthostatic hypotension at the first visit were 40 percent more likely to develop dementia than those who did not have it. They had 15 percent more cognitive decline.

New Alternative to Colonoscopy Is as Easy as Swallowing a Pill

A new noninvasive alternative to colonoscopies is as easy as swallowing a pill. The patient ingests PillCam™ Colon 2, a capsule containing two miniature cameras on either end. As the capsule travels through the digestive tract, it captures images and wirelessly transmits them to a recorder the patient wears on a belt. If a polyp is found, the patient arranges to undergo a colonoscopy to remove the growth. Although colonoscopies are safe and have been proven to be an effective way to screen for colon cancer, some patients cannot tolerate the procedure, or may be at higher risk for sedation. A patient must do the same bowl-cleansing preparation as a patient undergoing a colonoscopy. But unlike a standard colonoscopy, the pill capsule system requires no anesthesia. The U.S. Food and Drug Administration has approved the capsule system for patients who are not candidates for colonoscopies.

Rubenstein's Department Store was located at 515 and 519 Milam Street in downtown Shreveport. The building, constructed in 1915, housed Baldwin Music Company, Peacock Millinery Shop and Kidd Russ in the years prior to Rubenstein Brothers Department Store's opening in 1932. The store closed in 1987. Centerpoint Energy used part of the building for storage for a short time.

J.C. Penney Company was located at 415 Texas Street in downtown Shreveport. In 1984 the building was renovated into an office building, now know as One Texas Centre.

The Quiet HIGH of a Hot Air Balloon

by Kathleen Ward

*The winds have welcomed you with softness,
The sun has greeted you with its warm hands,
You have flown so high and so well,
That God has joined you in laughter,
And set you back gently into
The loving arms of Mother Earth.*
(From "The Balloonists' Prayer" – author unknown)

Gary Odom had flown just about everything else, so why not? A veteran pilot with twenty-three (23) Federal Aviation Administration certificates and ratings, Odom had spent more than 11,000 hours in the air, but was curious about some of the oldest modes of air travel still in use.

He decided to try gliders (first flown in 1849), seaplanes (1910) and hot air balloons (1783).

"I wanted to experience how it felt while flying an aircraft with no motor or thrust (a glider); how different it was landing and taking off on the water (a seaplane); and I was curious how much lead and lag time was required when flying the balloon," said Odom.

"I was able to spend two days in gliders, two days on the water in seaplanes, and three days flying hot air balloons in Florida and North Carolina," he said. He earned his hot air balloon private pilot certificate in 1985 and then got busy with other things.

"I was not around another balloon until 1993 when I crewed for a world champion pilot named Robert Ambeau from Gonzales, Louisiana," said Odom on a visit earlier this year to participate in the Red River Balloon Rally.

"I bought my first balloon within weeks of crewing for Robert. I still fly that balloon. It was manufactured by Aerostar and has a model designation of S-52 with an Aurora basket,” he said.

Balloons can cost hundreds of thousands if very large or of an unusual design. Odom paid $30,000 for “Master Blaster,” his two-person, 65,000 cubic foot balloon.

A former Coast Guard Search and Rescue pilot who taught aviation at Louisiana Tech until 2015, Odom and his wife and “crew chief”, Loree, now live in Florida.

The Odoms transport their balloon in the back of their pickup, but larger balloons require a trailer. Besides the balloon, which is powered by gas burners, balloons require inflation fans, ropes, radios and willing helpers. Loree Odom works on the ground with volunteer crewmembers curious about ballooning.

“I try to take up crewmembers who help me launch and retrieve the balloon. They work hard and are required to be at the launch location as early as 5:00 a.m. and sometimes we are still packing up the balloon as late as 10:00 p.m. after a balloon glow,” he said.

In July 2016, Russian Eastern Orthodox Priest and world-renowned adventurer Fedor Konyukhov, 65, broke the record for flying solo around the world in a balloon in 11 days and six hours. He was the fourth person ever to circumnavigate the planet in a balloon and the second person to do it both solo and in a non-pressurized capsule, according to www.nationalgeographic.com.

“While flying the balloon I have been circled by airplanes, helicopters, sport planes, paragliders, blimps and drones, but never experienced a near miss.”

“I was excited for the pilot, his crew and for the ballooning community, but I cannot imagine having to fly like he did without the necessary sleep. I am glad our airline pilots have mandatory crew rest requirements,” said Odom.

On July 30, 2016, sixteen (16) people were killed near Lockhart, Texas, when their balloon hit a power line and caught fire.

“Powerlines are balloons worst enemy,” said Odom. “While flying the balloon I have been circled by airplanes, helicopters, sport planes, paragliders, blimps and drones, but never experienced a near miss. I will often hit the top of the trees with the basket only to slow me down near a landing area. The basket will often oscillate after hitting the tree top and that assists the actual touchdown when coming down in a smaller landing zone,” he said.

Although Odom has never had an accident, he has experienced his share of excitement in the air.

“Since we are very quiet, except when we ‘burn’ to place heat into the envelope, you can sneak up on people who have no idea you are in their vicinity,” he said. Once he slowly drifted over some thick woods and disturbed a deer hunter.

“He was upset that I was making so much noise and scaring the deer away from him. He was unhappy and had a rifle in his hands and I was moving at approximately two to three miles per hour as we talked, so I knew I could not put it in after burner and leave immediately. I quickly apologized to him for disturbing the peacefulness of the woods and told him I would continue on my current path for another city block then circle counterclockwise and run the deer back toward him,” said Odom, who was just looking for a safe exit.

“That appeased him to no end and we said our goodbyes on amiable terms. I hope he is not still waiting on me to run the deer back toward him.”

Senior

by Gerry Robichaux

In its 25th season, the Northwest Louisiana District Senior Olympics will be anything but old hat.

The sports and games carnival for men and women 50 years of age and older will have new locations, new games and new faces which began March 22 and will continue to run through May 30.

"We feel we have made significant changes that will enhance the enjoyment of our games," said Ronny Comstock, Commissioner of the district. One can be traced directly to Comstock's work in his freshman season. He planned and worked out details with Shreveport Public Assembly & Recreation (SPAR) a year in advance to use spacious Riverside Convention Hall for the Games' Opening Ceremony and Senior Health Fair, staged in conjunction with The Best of Times on Wednesday, March 29.

One significant change finds Frank Trammel, a noted distance and marathon runner and national high school coach of the year when at Benton High School, will conduct the track and field competition for the district. "His expertise will help grow our event (April 29) continue to be a favorite stop for entrants from throughout the Ark-La-Tex," said Comstock.

In addition, the District Games will hold more activities at SPAR sites:

- Golf and Chip and Putt competition returns to Querbes Park Golf Course Monday, May 8. "Querbes Park was the site of the first Senior Olympics golf tournament in Northwest Louisiana in 1992," Comstock pointed out.

- Shuffleboard singles (April 18) and doubles (April 19) will be at Bill Cockrell Community Center in Shreveport.

- Bocce Ball will return to Betty Virginia Park on Line Avenue on Thursday morning May 4. "I am told we had great success with bocce ball in the park in the past," Comstock said.

The district's Open Division activities start Wednesday, March 22 with the popular and growing Bean Bag Baseball team competition at VFW Post on Jeter Street in Bossier City.

The VFW Post will host the Celebration of Athletes May 30 to wind up activities.

"We feel blessed to be welcomed at these fine facilities," Comstock said.

In his first season, Comstock and his aids Linda and Lionel Brabham saw the district reach 550 men and women, second-highest total ever.

The district will be aided in staging tennis competition this season by the Northwest Louisiana Community Tennis Association and the new professional at Bossier Tennis Center, Todd Killen, replacing Gerry Robichaux who has conducted the event for the past several years.

Senior Medicare Patrol Warns Beneficiaries of New Medicare Card Scam

EQHealth Solutions, the Senior Medicare Patrol (SMP) grantee for Florida, Louisiana, Mississippi and Wisconsin is alerting beneficiaries, their family members and caretakers of a new Medicare fraud scam. SMP is receiving calls from concerned stakeholders that scam artists posing as Medicare or other agency employees are calling people telling them that new cards are being issued and that in order to continue receiving benefits, the agency must “verify” or “update” identifying information. This includes their Medicare number and birth date and in some cases even financial accounts. Don't be fooled. This is a scam to steal personal information, money and possibly one's identity.

In an effort to help protect health care and financial information as well as federal health care benefit and service payments, the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid (CMS) is implementing the Social Security Removal Initiative. CMS will be issuing a new Medicare Beneficiary Identifier (MBI) to replace the Social Security Number-based Health Insurance Claim Number (HICN) on new Medicare cards.

Here is some information you need to know:

- Beginning in April 2018, CMS will start mailing the new Medicare cards with the MBI to all people with Medicare. Medicare will not phone you asking you for personal information. This includes your Medicare number. Nor does Medicare email or visit your home unannounced to “verify” or “update” information it already has.
- If you get a suspicious phone call, simply say, “I don't give out personal information over the phone,” and hang up.
- Report your experience at 1-877-

AN UNBREAKABLE BOND

Stephanie Johnson has spent most of her life in service to others. After serving her country as a sergeant in the Marines and then coming home to care for her sick mother, the retired mother of two was diagnosed with a rare form of cancer called synovial sarcoma.

The cancer that had started out as a lump in Stephanie's foot would eventually claim her foot altogether. When doctors informed her that the foot would have to be amputated she was devastated, but her son DJ jumped in to provide the support she needed.

After taking a break from college to help care for his mother 24/7, DJ returned to school and earned his degree, but struggled to find a job that he really cared about. Since he was already familiar with Snell's Orthotics & Prosthetics from taking his mother to her appointments there, DJ decided to apply for a position with the company.

Now working as a prosthetic technician in the Shreveport office, DJ helps to fabricate and maintain prostheses for many of Snell's patients. However, there is one special patient who is very close to his heart, but that's understandable since they share an unbreakable bond as mother and son.

The SMP program's mission is to empower and assist Medicare beneficiaries, their families, and caregivers to prevent, detect, and report health care fraud errors, and abuse through outreach, counseling and education. The Department of Health and Human Services (DHHS) Office of Inspector General (OIG) estimates that Medicare loses billions of dollars each year due to errors, fraud and abuse. SMP actively works to disseminate fraud prevention information through the media, outreach campaigns, community events and by working with Medicare beneficiaries. The National SMP message, "Protect, Detect & Report", is communicated throughout the four states by eQHealth staff and volunteer groups, who are the backbone of the project.

Retirement Can Sometimes Bring Relationship Issues

Retirement is something most couples look forward to. It can mean more free time and the chance to do more things you've both been anticipating.

But sometimes retirement can bring changes that add significant stress to a marriage. One reason is that many people fail to realize that retirement means more than simply not working. Retirement usually brings major changes not just to the retiree, but to his or her spouse as well.

One such change is the loss of identity that often comes with leaving a job. Upon retirement, you are suddenly no longer a "teacher," or "department manager," or whatever job description that you probably had for several years. Since our society tends to value work and job titles, when you're no longer working it's not uncommon to feel a sense of diminished self-worth because you are no longer "doing something of value."

The result can sometimes be serious depression, especially for someone who has been dedicated to a job and hasn't developed many friends or interests outside the workplace. Such depression can bring health problems and certainly add stress to a marriage and possibly lead to meaningful relationship issues.

Retirement financial stresses can also be a source of marital stress. For most people, retirement income seldom matches those old work paychecks, yet expenses of travel or medical issues might be significantly higher.

Even the extra time together that retirement makes possible can be a source of stress. Someone newly retired may interrupt the established daily routine of his or her spouse, expecting to be the center of attention now that going to work is behind him or her. In some cases that extra time together may highlight marriage problems that were more easily ignored when work kept the couple separated for much of the day.

Retirement doesn't always bring stress and problems to a marriage. Most couples handle retirement and the changes it brings extremely well. But if there are warning signs that retirement is putting a strain on your relationship, seek help if the problems are serious.

There are professional counselors who specialize in retirement and relationship issues. The ACA website at www.counseling.org can help you find a professional counselor through the "Find A Counselor" tab at the top. What they have to offer can help make possible a relationship in which the partners are not just retired, but also happy and satisfied.

Is Possession Really Nine-Tenths of the Law?

Back in the 1950's something odd happened down in New Orleans. A young woman, who I'll call Mrs. Cleaver (not her real name), was murdered.

Now I know what you're thinking: murder in New Orleans? There's nothing odd about that! But remember, this was the 1950's, a time when America was great and everything was perfect. I learnt that by watching the TV show Mad Men.

But it wasn't the murder that made the Cleaver case odd. It was the pre-nup.

Like today, back in the 1950's Louisiana was a community property state. That means that half of the husband's pay-check belongs to the wife and vice-versa. But Mr. Cleaver wasn't OK with that. So before he got married, he and the soon-to-be Mrs. Cleaver signed a pre-nuptial agreement: what he earned during the marriage would be his and what she earned, which was nothing because not many women worked outside of the home in 1950's New Orleans, would be hers.

Care to guess how long this marriage lasted? Not too long. The couple separated, but before they were officially divorced, Mrs. Cleaver was murdered.

Before she had died, Mr. Cleaver had bought a lot of stuff for his wife. Furniture. All kinds of stuff for the home. A car. And Mrs. Cleaver's Dad, Wallace (not his real name), who was her heir, wanted that stuff. He figured that his daughter was in possession of this stuff when she died. Mr. Cleaver had left it all behind when the couple separated and he had moved away. And possession is nine-tenths of the law, right?

That sure wasn't what Mr. Cleaver thought. He had bought that stuff with his money, and there was that pre-nup saying what was his stayed his. Wallace, on the other hand, felt that Mr. Cleaver had given this stuff to his daughter. And a gift is a gift. So despite the pre-nup, Mrs. Cleaver's Dad felt that the stuff didn't belong to Mr. Cleaver anymore. He had given it to Mrs. Cleaver.

If you were the Judge, how would you decided?

Here's what Louisiana law says: even if there is a pre-nup saying that the spouses will keep their property separate, it is still possible for the couple to give each other gifts. For example, if there was a pre-nup and Mr. Cleaver used his money to buy a diamond, then the diamond is his and his alone. But if he then gives the diamond to his wife, then the diamond is hers and hers alone.

But Louisiana law also goes on to say, "Nemo presumitur donare." Or in English, "never presume a donation." Which means that in order for the Judge to rule that Mr. Cleaver gave or donated the stuff to his wife, then Mrs. Cleaver's Dad is going to have to prove it. Unless Wallace has some strong and convincing evidence that a gift was made, the Judge will never be able to presume a donation took place and will have to say that Mr. Cleaver owns the stuff.

But Mrs. Cleaver was dead, so she couldn't testify as to whether or not a gift had been made. The only evidence that Mrs. Cleaver's Dad had was the fact that Mr. Cleaver hadn't taken any of this stuff when he left his wife. And Mr. Cleaver didn't take it because, according to Wallace, it didn't belong to him. He had given it to his wife.

Strong enough evidence for you? It wasn't for the Judge, especially with Mr. Cleaver, who was still alive, testifying that he had never given those things to his wife and never told her that they were gifts.

On the other hand, let's say that I lend my car to my good friend Shafty. Shafty takes my car and refuses to return it because he claims that I gave it to him. I wouldn't have to prove anything to get my car back. It would be up to Shafty to prove that a gift had been made because in Louisiana we never presume a donation. Shaft would have possession, but he wouldn't have nine-tenths of the law. In Louisiana, the law would be on my side.

FIVE FACTS your doctor should be telling you about CoQ10:

- 01 Sparks Energy – Many cases of heart failure are actually caused by a lack of CoQ10. CoQ10 sparks energy in every cell of your body including your heart which is your body's largest energy user. Without enough CoQ10, your heart doesn't pump blood as efficiently as it should.
- 02 Feel Younger – The lack of energy we call "aging" is often just a CoQ10 deficit. Your body naturally produces CoQ10 throughout your life, but production drops as you get older. When people start taking CoQ10, they often feel 10 years younger.
- 03 Coq10 Is A Powerful Antioxidant – It cleans up the destructive free radicals that are by-products of the energy production process.
- 04 On A Statin Medication? – If you're on a statin medication, you MUST take CoQ10. Not only do statins stop cholesterol production, but they also hinder your body's production of CoQ10. That's why many people end up with muscle aches and weakness while taking statins.
- 05 What Brand To Choose
Not every CoQ10 supplement works. The form of CoQ10 you take affects how well it is absorbed into your body. We like Boudreaux's brand CoQ-10 Pre-Emulsified Liposomal (PEL) Delivery System. Evidence has shown that pre-emulsified CoQ-10 delivery forms show increased absorption over powdered forms.

Find Affordable High-Speed Home Internet Services

Dear Savvy Senior,

Do you know of any resources that can help me find affordable high-speed home Internet services? I'm retired and live primarily on my Social Security and would like to find something cheaper than the $40 per month that I currently pay. ~Searching Senior

Dear Searching,

There are two great resources you can turn to, to help you locate low-cost or discounted Internet services, but what's available to you will depend on where you live and/or your income level. Here's where to begin.

LOW-COST INTERNET

Your first step to locate cheaper high-speed Internet is EveryoneOn, a national nonprofit organization dedicated to making affordable Internet services available to all Americans.

Through partnerships with Internet providers like Comcast, Cox, AT&T, T-Mobile, Mediacom and others, EveryoneOn can help you search for services in your area that provide high-speed (4G LTE) Internet at a very low cost. Most participating companies charge around $10 per month, with no contract and no equipment fee. However, for non-income qualifiers, there may be a one-time setup/equipment fee of $62. Data plans will vary too.

To start your search, go to EveryoneOn.org and type in your ZIP code and click on the "Find Offers" button, or you can call 877-947-4321. You'll then need to answer a few questions regarding your household financial situation so the Internet services you're eligible for can be located.

Some providers offer their services only to people with limited financial resources, however there are others that offer low-cost deals to everyone regardless of income.

What's available to you will depend on where you live.

Also note that in addition to the low-cost Internet services,

EveryoneOn also provides referrals to affordable computers and free computer classes.

Most of the companies they work with offer refurbished tablets usually for under $100, and computers for under $160 that are available to everyone. And, they provide referrals to free computer classes, which are typically offered in public libraries across the U.S.

DISCOUNTED INTERNET

If you don't have any luck finding a low-cost service through EveryoneOn, and your income is low enough,

AC Duct Cleaners

What you can't see
CAN hurt you

another option is the Lifeline Assistance Program. This is a federal program that provides a $9.25 monthly subsidy to help pay for broadband Internet service, or for a home or wireless phone. Only one benefit is available per household; either phone service (home or wireless) or Internet (home or mobile), but not both.

To qualify, you'll need to show that your annual household income is at or below 135 percent of the Federal Poverty Guidelines – which is $16,281 for one person, or $21,924 for two. Or, that you're receiving certain types of government benefits, such as Medicaid, food stamps, SSI, public housing assistance, veterans pension or survivors pension benefit, or live on federally recognized Tribal lands.

To apply, you'll need to contact an Internet provider in your area that participates in the Lifeline program and ask for an application form. To locate providers in your area, visit LifelineSupport.org or call 888-641-8722. Once the provider verifies your eligibility, they will begin service. (NOTE: The Internet companies that partner with EveryoneOn do not currently accept the lifeline subsidy.)

Send your questions to: Savvy Senior, P.O. Box 5443, Norman, OK 73070, or visit SavvySenior.org. Savvy Senior, by Jim Miller, is a syndicated column for older Americans and their families. He also contributes to the NBC Today show and is author of "The Savvy Senior" book.

5 Supplements That Make You Look Younger than You Are

I can spot a smoker or a sunbather really fast because they look older than they should from the free radical damage. Maybe you thought beauty is only skin deep, but it's not. A radiant youthful-looking face is actually an inside job. It helps to drink fresh water, exercise regularly and eat healthy foods to get the nutrients which provide the building blocks of healthy skin. Your gut and liver enzymes (glutathione and catalase) must remove toxins and free radicals every second of the day otherwise the junk inside your cell damages your skin.

I've tried various supplements over the years (on and off) to keep my skin looking as good as it can. At 52, some level of aging is inevitable but it's amazing what your face can look like if you neutralize free radicals before they age you and use high-quality skin care products. Here are some of my favorite skin-loving herbs and nutrients:

Milk Thistle

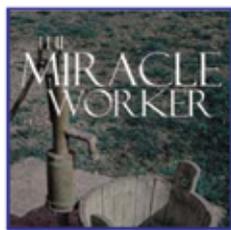

It's a food, but also a supplement. Your liver processes everything that goes in your mouth, including alcohol, prescription medications, pesticides, preservatives, additives and artificial colors. Your liver detoxifies everything your body doesn't need. This reminds me of that episode on "I Love Lucy" where she's struggling to keep up with the conveyor belt of chocolates coming down the line! When your liver falls behind on its job, poisons come out through your skin causing rashes, and itchiness. You'll age faster. Avoid milk thistle if you're allergic to ragweed, chrysanthemums, marigolds or daisies.

Collagen

Collagen is a natural component of skin that declines as you age, resulting in thinner, less elastic, more saggy skin. Two 2014 studies found that oral supplementation with this may improve skin elasticity and diminish wrinkles.

Silica

This makes hot springs pretty and blue in color. Silica is a trace mineral that helps soothe psoriasis, eczema and rashes when applied topically. Taken internally, silica helps you make collagen naturally, strengthening your nails.

Vitamin E

You may think of rubbing vitamin E oil directly on your skin to prevent scars, but taken orally, vitamin E is a powerful cellular antioxidant, which means it gobbles up free radicals that could otherwise potentially damage your skin cells and lead to premature aging.

Zinc

It's not just for your prostate, or for colds! This mineral reduces skin inflammation and irritation, whether that's associated with acne, pimples, or rashes. It also plays a role in managing the production and turnover of skin cells. When I worked in nursing homes with residents who had painful diabetes-related wounds, or decubitus ulcers, we always put them on zinc and vitamin C. Be careful with zinc, don't take too much. In fact avoid it if you take ginkgo biloba, ibuprofen or warfarin because it slightly increases risk of bleeding.

If you'd like to read the longer version of this article, it's available at my website, suzycohen.com Please make sure to ask your doctor if these supplements are right for you.

ST. LOUIS: Spanning Past & Future

Story by Andrea Gross; photos by Irv Green

I'm squeezed into a small capsule with four fellow passengers, readying myself for a ride that will carry me 630 feet to the top of the tallest man-made monument in the United States. I take a deep breath and cross my fingers, as the capsule, which is linked to 15 similar pods to form a tram that resembles a space-age caterpillar, begins wiggling its way up the leg of a giant parabola.

The Gateway Arch is one of the most recognized landmarks in the world as well as the tallest man-made monument in the United States.

The capsule shudders to a stop, and we crawl out to find ourselves in a long narrow room at the crest of St. Louis's Gateway Arch. I look down, way down. Unlike the observation deck of the Empire State building, this room is not supported by a sturdy building. Here there's nothing between me and the ground but the floor of the room and air.

Officially named "The Jefferson National Expansion Memorial," Gateway Arch was built to commemorate Thomas Jefferson's purchase of the Louisiana Territory, which expanded the United States by 828,000,000 square miles. The small town of St. Louis, which was on the eastern edge of the newly acquired land, thus became known as the "Gateway to the West."

I peer out one of the small windows — the structure can't support large, panoramic windows — and there, 60 stories below me, is the city of St. Louis.

Off to one side I see the Mississippi River, which is lined with paddle-boats. From another window, I see Busch Stadium, home to the St. Louis Cardinals, as well as the Old Courthouse, which now serves as a museum and visitor center. In previous incarnations it was the site where two slaves, Dred Scott and his spouse, Harriet Robinson, sued their owner for freedom and where a woman named Virginia Minor argued that women should have the right to vote.

The next day we head 20 miles west to St. Charles, which is Missouri's first and largest historic district as well as quite possibly the state's most charming town. A trolley takes us down brick-paved streets while a narrator gives us the pertinent facts: The Missouri River joins the Mississippi a few miles to the north, the town was a stomping ground for Daniel Boone, a meeting place for Lewis and Clark and a kick-off point for wagon trains headed west.

All this made St. Charles a major trading center, which it still is — although now the shops deal in trendy clothes and classy art rather than pelts and pipes.

Busch Stadium is the home of the St. Louis Cardinals, the city's major league baseball team.

St. Louis is visited by many of the riverboats that run between Minnesota to Louisiana.

We hear personal stories of the town's past at Boone's Colonial Inn, which dates back to the early 1800s. Proprietors Venetia McEntire and Stephen Powell bought the property in 2005 and in the process of renovating it quite literally dug up pieces of its history. Now, in addition to running a classy B-and-B, they tell folks about the ground beneath as well as the antiques within.

A half-century after St. Charles was settled, Italians began arriving from Italy to work in the clay mines. They congregated in a neighborhood called "The Hill," and today the streets are filled with small shops, church bells ring throughout the day, and fire hydrants are painted the red, white and green of the Italian flag.

Informal surveys show that about 60 percent of the residents are of Italian ancestry, and approximately 15 percent were born in Italy. This means Italian is often spoken and backslapping Italiano greetings are common.

It also means that the food — from home-made pasta and sauces to salami, prosciutto, pastries and gelato — is superb. In order to taste as many varieties as possible, we sign onto a food tour and super-snack our way from one eatery to another. My favorite: the Missouri Baking Company, where I feast on a cuccidati, a mix of figs, raisins, pine nuts, chocolate and orange peel. In other words, cuccidati is a deliciously glorified Fig Newton.

Thoroughly stuffed and in need of exercise, we walk past the childhood homes of two of The Hill's most famous residents, Yogi Berra and Joe Garagiola. The houses are on a street that was formerly called Elizabeth Avenue but now, not surprisingly, has been renamed Hall of Fame Place.

Finally before leaving St. Louis, we swing by the Arch for a last look at the iconic monument. It was built in 1965 to commemorate an event that took place a century earlier, when St. Louis truly was "The Gateway to the West." Now, 50 years later, a massive urban renewal project is redefining its original intent. Linking the river, Arch, courthouse and downtown by means of greenspace, walkways and bike paths, St. Louis is now also "The Gateway to the Future."

The Hill is dotted with fire hydrants painted the red, white and green of the Italian flag.

Variety, the Spice of Ed Asner's Life

Don't expect Ed Asner's name to fade from casting lists anytime soon. With a variety of current and upcoming projects, 87-year-old Asner remains as busy and versatile as ever.

It's a trend that follows a lifetime of dedication to his craft, playing bishops, doctors, judges, cops, cowboys, professors, villains, and hundreds more film, television, and stage characters and voice roles.

"When I came out to Hollywood in 1961, I was determined not to be typecast," said Asner from his office in Los Angeles. "My agent and I worked assiduously ever since to make sure that never happened."

Nevertheless, Asner is still widely recognized as Lou Grant, the TV news director and newspaper editor, respectively, on "The Mary Tyler Moore Show" and its spinoff series "Lou Grant." In fact, five of his seven Primetime Emmys were awarded for the character.

But Asner also collected the award for darker portrayals in "Rich Man, Poor Man" in 1976 and, the following year, "Roots." Thirteen more Primetime and Daytime Emmy nominations came his way, too.

Yet he modestly brushes aside any reference to his hefty collection of iconic gold-plated figures that feature a woman with pointed wings holding an atom (representing the arts and sciences).

"They're distributed throughout the house," Asner said of his statuettes. "Those prongs (on the wings) are really sharp. I just have to be sure I don't sit on one."

Before arriving in Hollywood from his native Kansas City, young Ed found one of his first television jobs in the New York anthology drama series,

"Studio One." In 1957, he appeared in the episode "The Night America Trembled," a recreation of the reputed panic caused to some listeners by an Orson Welles' radio broadcast of H.G. Wells' "War of the Worlds" in 1938.

"Imagine being in the studio with Welles for those broadcasts," noted Asner of Welles' "Mercury Theatre on the Air" radio dramas. "I've heard he would stay in bed and roll out just in time to make it to the studio so his voice would be as deep as he could get it."

The 60s brought movie roles alongside the likes of Boris Karloff, John Wayne, and Elvis Presley. And after working on the Mary Tyler Moore comedy series, Asner took the lead in his own show in 1977 – a rare network move to spinoff a 1-hour drama series from a half-hour comedy. But "Lou Grant" eventually found an audience and good ratings during its 5-season run.

“I didn’t base the character on any particular journalist,” noted Asner. “I looked to my older brothers for their largeness and for their teasing and doubting qualities. For the hour show that dealt with more serious issues, I began to look more into myself for inspiration.”

When the series was suddenly canceled in 1982, Asner believed it was due to his political views and activism, including a statement he made as the Screen Actors Guild president regarding U.S. policy in Central America at the time. And despite his left-leaning philosophy, he even managed to rankle liberal Hollywood.

“Even the liberal producers and directors were loath to employ me for a while because I could affect 50% of their audience and alienate some sponsors,” he said.

Today, Asner still speaks out on social issues of concern and has numerous film and TV projects lined up for the coming year.

When asked to sum up his career, Asner offered a one-word description, “eclectic,” adding “I was always happy with the variety of roles I was able to garner. But I’m not through yet.”

his prideful furies, while still another is followed by orbs representing the three daughters she left behind. All the ghosts have something that's pulling at them to remain: regret, vengeance, sorrow, worry.

All of the ghosts truly just want to be heard. So when they see Willie visited by his still living father and they watch awestruck as the two are able to find a way to interact. Willie quickly becomes the subject of adamant attention by the other "sick" denizens.

"So many were still waiting, a shifting mass of gray and black, as far as the eye could... People in the moonlight outside, pushing and shoving, standing on tiptoe to see... me. Faces thrusting into the doorway to blurt their sad this or that, none were content, all had been wronged, neglected, overlooked, misunderstood," Willie muses as he discovers his newfound popularity.

And throughout the book, the story of what happened to Willie is told by lines taken from many different perspectives, some lauding President Lincoln as a man of empathy, while others scream and curse at his inadequacy and his lack of concern for his own son. The whole thing serves as an interesting study in perspective and how a story gets told.

It should be noted that the book contains a lot of harsh language and imagery, which though suits the characters well, may be a bit much for some.

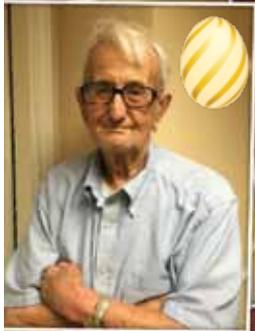

Lincoln in the Bardo is truly a unique tale and does a moving and beautiful job of portraying grief, fear and even hope. The audiobook has also garnered a lot of attention because it is performed by 166 different narrators, many quite famous, and feels almost like listening to a staged production.

Heirloom Tomato and Mozzarella Salad

Put a fresh twist on farm-to-table goodness by pairing two vine-ripened garden treasures: heirloom tomatoes and crisp, refreshing white wine. Inspired by the annual Kendall-Jackson Heirloom Tomato Festival, this salad recipe is a twist on classic favorite. Find more pairing tips and recipes featuring seasonal ingredients at kj.com.

Servings: 4

2½ pounds heirloom tomatoes, mixed varieties

¼ cup good quality extra-virgin olive oil kosher salt, to taste

freshly ground black pepper, to taste

¼ cup micro basil (or 1 dozen basil leaves, sliced and torn), divided

2 large balls fresh mozzarella, cut into wedges

flaked sea salt

Slice tomatoes into ¾- to 1-inch thick wedges. In large bowl, add tomatoes, olive oil, kosher salt, pepper and half the basil. Toss and allow to marinate 2 minutes. Arrange tomatoes and mozzarella on serving plate, alternating each. Pour marinating liquid over tomatoes and mozzarella. Garnish with remaining basil and sprinkle with sea salt and pepper. Serve with Kendall-Jackson Grand Reserve Chardonnay.

Delightful Farm-Raised Foods

Linguini with Honey-Sauced Prawns

Make pasta the centerpiece of your meal with this recipe for Linguini with Honey-Sauced Prawns, which combines sweet honey with classic linguini pasta for a flavorful bite at the dinner table. Outside of honey's ability as a natural sweetener, it can also give you a boost of energy as a rich source of carbohydrates – and this recipe is no exception, with 61 grams of carbs in each serving. Find more delicious recipes, at honey.com. (Recipe courtesy of National Honey Board)

Servings: 4

1 pound prawns, peeled and deveined

½ cup julienne carrots

½ cup julienne celery

½ cup green onions, sliced diagonally

3 cloves garlic, minced

2 tablespoons olive oil

½ cup water

¼ cup honey

4 teaspoons cornstarch

1 teaspoon salt

¼ teaspoon crushed red pepper flakes

¼ teaspoon crushed dried rosemary leaves

1 pound cooked linguini pasta, kept warm

In large skillet, stir-fry prawns, carrots, celery, green onions and garlic in oil over medium-high heat about 3 minutes, or until prawns start to turn pink.

In small bowl, combine remaining ingredients except pasta; mix well. Add to prawn mixture; stir-fry about 1 minute, or until sauce thickens. Serve over pasta.

Strawberry and Goat Cheese Pizza

This non-traditional take on pizza will have your taste buds exploding. California strawberries, which boast just 7 grams of sugar and provide 140% of the daily recommended amount of vitamin C per cup, are hand-picked to ensure only the highest quality berries are harvested. Research has also shown this superfruit to be an effective way to help prevent and manage Alzheimer's disease and diabetes. For more strawberry recipes, visit californiastrawberries.com. (Recipe courtesy of the California Strawberry Commission)

Servings: 8 (½ pizza each)

½ ounce active dry yeast	¼ cup aged balsamic vinegar
1 tablespoon sugar	½ cup (4 ounces) softened goat cheese
3-4 cups all-purpose flour	4 cups fresh California strawberries, hulled and quartered
2 teaspoons kosher salt	¼ cup (2 ounces) crumbled goat cheese
1 tablespoon olive oil	coarsely ground black pepper
3 tablespoons white balsamic vinegar	baby arugula frisee
3 tablespoons extra-virgin olive oil

Heat oven to 400 F.

To make pizza dough: In mixer bowl, sprinkle yeast and sugar over 1 cup warm water; let stand until foamy. Add 3 cups flour, salt and olive oil; mix with dough hook until stretchy and no longer sticky, adding more flour if necessary. Divide dough into four equal portions. Refrigerate, covered, until needed.

To make white balsamic vinaigrette: In small nonreactive saucepan, simmer white balsamic vinegar until reduced to 1½ tablespoons. Whisk in extra-virgin olive oil.

To make aged balsamic reduction: In small nonreactive saucepan, simmer aged balsamic vinegar until reduced to about 4 teaspoons.

On lightly floured surface, roll each piece of pizza dough into 8-inch circle. Place on baking sheet; bake 10 minutes, or until firm and slightly brown. Spread softened goat cheese on pizzas, leaving ½-inch border.

Toss strawberries with white balsamic vinaigrette; arrange strawberries evenly on goat cheese. Bake 10 minutes more. Remove from oven; scatter crumbled goat cheese on top.

Drizzle with aged balsamic reduction; sprinkle with black pepper. Garnish pizzas with leaves of arugula and frisee.

My mother has been recently diagnosed with Alzheimer's disease, does she qualify for hospice care under her Medicare benefits?

Medicare will pay 100% for hospice services for Alzheimer's disease and any diagnosis where patients are determined to have a life expectancy of less than six months. Our hospice would need to obtain a physician's order to evaluate your mother to see if she meets the hospice Medicare guidelines of a 6 month prognosis to qualify for hospice care services.

Will Medicare cover my mother's care in a nursing home?

While Medicare does not pay room & board fees for one actually "living" in a nursing home, there are portions of nursing home care that are covered. Medicare covers 100 days of skilled nursing care when the doctor feels that either nursing or rehabilitation services for Medicare Part A insured persons are needed following a recent hospitalization of 3 or more days. Additionally, Medicare Parts B & D may pay for your mother's medications and physical, speech or occupational therapies ordered by a physician while she is in a nursing home. Depending upon the financial situation, nursing home room & board is generally paid by the individual, Medicaid, or Long Term Care Insurance.

I am 70 years old and am very nearsighted. I noticed that area doctors have been promoting LASIK to correct nearsightedness. Am I a candidate at my age and does Medicare cover any part of the costs?

LASIK is usually not a first option for people over age 65 because of cataracts. There is a new Multifocal Lens available now called ReStor that allows people with cataracts to see like they did at 25! 80% of people who have the Restor lens implanted are completely free from glasses. Medicare does cover some of the cost of the new lens. To find out if you are a ReStor candidate, call our office at 212-3937 for a screening exam.

What are the symptoms and treatment of torn cartilage?

Meniscus tears are the most common surgical condition involving the knee. Medial meniscus (inside) tears are 3 - 4 times more common than lateral tears (outside). The meniscus support 50% of the body weight with the knee extended and 90% with the knee flexed 90°. Because the meniscus supports body weight every attempt should be made to repair or maintain as much meniscus tissue as possible. Popping, giving way, locking, tenderness at the joint line, stiffness, and swelling are some of the signs/symptoms of cartilage tears. Arthroscopic surgery is generally done on an outpatient basis and recovery is from a few days to a weeks.

1 About 75% of flags contain red and 70% have white in their flag. There are twenty nations in the world who have red, white, and blue in their flag.

2 Mandarin Chinese is the most widely spoken language in the world. Spanish is second, followed by English.

3 Bluetooth technology was named after 10th century King Harald I, also known as "Bluetooth", who united the warring tribes in what is now Denmark, Norway, and Sweden. Similarly, Bluetooth technology was created to allow connectivity between competing, non-compatible products. King Harald was rumored to have a conspicuous dark "blue-like" tooth. The Bluetooth logo - that symbol in a blue oval printed on the box your phone came in - is actually the initials of Harald Bluetooth written in Scandinavian runes.

4 Hair color. According to a 2004 study at University of Louisville in Kentucky, persons with red hair color may require up to 20% more anesthesia before surgery than do blondes and brunettes.

MACULAR DEGENERATION

Imagine A Pair Of Glasses That Can Help You See Better!

Ever look through a pair of field glasses or binoculars? Things look bigger and closer, and easier to see. Dr. Mona Douglas is using miniaturized binoculars or telescopes to help people who have decreased vision, to see better.

In many cases, special telescopic glasses can be prescribed to enhance visual performance. She can often help people read, watch TV, see the computer and sometimes drive.

Telescopic glasses cost between $1900-$2600. It is a small price to pay for the hours of enjoyment with better vision and more independence.

When you need nursing home care, how will you pay for it?

This is No Time to Delay

Nursing home care can cost over $5000 per month.

Fees like that can wipe out your savings in short order, leaving you to the bare minimum of care covered by Medicaid and nothing extra. Extras like recreation. Like dental care. Like extra personal care. And something to your children instead of going broke.

With a good plan, you can qualify for Medicaid and still preserve your wealth to supplement what Medicaid will pay for—and you can even leave something for your children.

Let Joe Gilsoul and Lee Aronson guide you in setting up a plan that suits your needs and circumstances. Their philosophy is to take the time and care required to get to know you, your goals, and your finances and to help you devise a plan customized to your unique needs.
